Special to the Indianapolis Journal DELPHI, Ind., Sept. 17 .- The citizens of producer gas for fuel the coming winter and Carroll county have been taking a keen interest in Ohio politics, as Mark Hanna is a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate. Senator Hanna made his first campaign speech in Delphi and the people here appreciate the fact, and allude to the occasion with pride. The reissue of the Delphi Journal has the following to say: "The newspapers state that the senator's condition has been such as to warn him against active participation in the coming election in Oho. It should not be necessary for Senator Hanna to leave his home during the coming campaign. His work for the country has been such as to win not only the respect but the affections of many people who were formerly prejudiced against him. No public man has ever won such a complete victory over his defamers as has Senator Mark Hanna. Our citizens of Delphi recall with pride the fact that Senator Hanna first unslung his battle ax on the public square in Delphi, Ind. He commenced cleaving the helmets of his detractors, and it was not long until the tide changed and the army of vilifiers was put to rout. Since that time it has been 'easy' for Senator Hanna. The cartoonist who made big money by drawing ugiy pictures of him has gone into other lines of work, while the editorial writers who dipped their pens in vitriol and went after Senator Hanna are engaged in discussing other subjects. If Ohio does what sensible people think she ought to do she will tell Senator Hanna to take care of himself in his own home during the campaign and watch for the returns on election day. He should be given at least 100,000 majority by the State which he loves and has so highly honored.

Logansport City Dads Nearly Come to Blows Over Proposition of a Republican-Resolution Voted Down.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LOGANSPORT, Ind., Sept. 17 .- Lively scenes were enacted in the meeting of the Logansport Common Council last night, when Councilman S. B. Boyer, Republican, of the Fourth ward, and chairman of the finance committee, tried to have passed a resolution providing for the transfer of $12,000 water works surplus funds into the sinking fund to pay off bonds due in 1905. Councilman Henry Kruck, of the First, and Councilman J. H. Reitemeier, of the Third Ward, both Democrats, and the other members of the finance committee failed to indorse his proposition, and he characterized them as "noodles" and "shirkers." The lie was passed by Reitemeier, and blows were threatened, the whole affair winding up in the attempt of Boyer to hand in his resignation, which was voted on but not accepted

His proposition to transfer the funds was characterized by the Democratic members of the Council as a political move which would deprive the administration of the opportunity to apply the funds to the general fund, and thus reduce the floating indebtedness. The proposition was voted down by the Council, which is Democratic.

PLOT TO ASSASSINATE

PAROLED CONVICT PLANNED TO KILL FORMER LAPORTE SHERIFF.

His Wife Betrayed Him and the Surrounding Country Is Being Rausacked to Find the Plotter.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAPORTE, Ind., Sept. 17 .- A plot to assassinate Nathan D. McCormick, former sheriff and one of Laporte's best-known citizens, came to light to-day. As a result the country is being scoured for Edward Casker, a paroled prisoner from the Reformatory at Jeffersonville. Mrs. Edward Casker, otherwise known as Miss Lou Mc-Farlane, gave the officers the tip that led to the discovery of the plot to murder Mc-Cormick in cold blood. Several years ago Casker was arrested here on a larceny charge. He was sentenced to prison, but feigned sickness and was held at the county jail several months, McCormick being sheriff during that time. Casker made an ineffectual attempt to commit suicide by eating pounded glass and peroxide of copper while in jail and afterward, when supposed to be on his death-bed, was married in the corridor of the jail, where Miss McFarlane attended him till he was sent to Jeffersonville. He was recently paroled to William Hood, of this county, but ran away. Yesterday he came to his wife's home in this city and there confided to her the details of the proposed murder of Mc-Cormick, for whom Casker had conceived a strong dislike. The woman hastened to put McCormick on his guard. Casker cannot be located.

Senator Hoar's collection is one of the finest private collection of books in the land. It was not picked up at random, neither was it bought at auction sale. The more than five thousand volumes in his library are the result of thoughtful selection, of patient waiting, of much correspondence and final careful purchasing. Not a few of the books and manuscripts in the collection money could not buy. These are the gifts of friends and admirers. Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, for instance, gave the senator that magnificent two-volume de luxe edition of Horace and Virgil, which, it has since been thought, may have been the property of Thomas Jefferson. DEAD BESIDE THE ROAD

Madison County Farmer Found by His Sons-Fell from His Wagon. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. ELWOOD, Ind., Sept. 17 .- Lying cold in death at one side of the road three miles east and two miles north of Elwood and four miles south of his home the body of Frederick Fernung, a farmer, aged fortyseven, was found by two of his sons, aged ten and fourteen years, soon after 1 o'clock this morning. Just how he met his death may never be known, and is now the subject of much speculation. Fernung had lived on a farm northeast of Elwood with his wife and twelve children for several years. He was associated with Perry Miller, two miles east of Elwood, in the fruit business, and the two had been in Elwood Wednesday afternoon attending to ome business, starting home about dusk. Miller left the wagon in which they were riding at his home and Fernung continued on toward his home. That was the last seen of him alive. Although Miller says they took a single dram of liquor before starting for home, he is positive that Fernung was not intoxicated when he continued on his way. The horses and wagon, without a driver, reached home a little before midnight. Mrs. Fernung discovered this fact at once, and, hastily dressing, aroused the oldest two boys and bade them place the team in the stable and hitch up a buggy to go after their father, whom she suspected had lost the team on the way home. Four miles down the road the boys found the dead body of their father. They called neighbors to their assistance, but nothing could be done. Across Fernung's left cheek

there was a discolored bruise, and his back was broken. The only way his death can be accounted for is that Fernung fell into a doze, and as the wagon passed over a rough place in the road he was thrown from the seat, striking the hard roadbed on his head, and breaking the neck. There
